

Mark Scicluna Bartoli

Mark Scicluna Bartoli is tasked with improving access to finance through the development of risk sharing guaranteed financial instruments. Over the past twelve years Mark has tapped into both EU and National guarantee funds mobilising over €600 million in private funds for Maltese enterprises and energy efficiency investments.

Between 2004 and 2012 Mark was tasked with setting up the EU funding unit within Malta Enterprise which launched €45million in EU grants for Maltese enterprises. Prior to 2004 Mark worked as an environmental consultant with Arthur D Little in Cambridge, UK and with the EU Commission in Brussels.

Mark studied life sciences at the University of Malta and later specialised in environmental assessment and evaluation as a Chevening Scholar at the London School of Economics and Political Sciences.

On a personal level, Mark is engaged by the EU Commission and United Nations as an expert in the fields of access to finance and environment and has just concluded his 6-year term as a member of the Board of Directors of the European Investment Fund.
