

Steve Gingell

Steve is a certified public accountant and has working in PwC's tax practice for over 20 years and was admitted to the partnership in 2016.

Steve read for a Masters in Law with a specialisation in tax at the University of London and worked with PwC in London for a two year period and returned to Malta in 2008. Over the years Steve has been involved in advising a wide variety of local and international clients operating in different sectors including banking, aviation, gaming, tourism and trading operations. Steve is passionate about the application of technology in business and personal life and is actively involved in the adoption of new technologies within PwC.

Steve also lectured for several years at the University of Malta and to students preparing for the Advanced Diploma in International Taxation and other tax courses.